Shot To Death For Losing Case

Detective Chief Henry Sandman said Tuesday this was how Albert Knaian explained why he shot and killed J. Robert Sagmeister, 49, prominent Cincinnati attorney.

Police said Knaian turned himself in at Central Police Station a few blocks from the Tri-State Building where Sagmeister had his offices.

Knaian, 70, a dimunitive seller of Armenian rugs, was held on an open charge. Police said he apparently killed Sagmeister as the result of a $100,000 lawsuit Kna-

The attorney had been shot twice in the stomach. He had been the defendant in the lawsuit filed two years ago by Knaian, who contended Mrs. Helen E. Stagge had promised him her house. Sagmeister was administrator of the estate of Mrs.

Knaian contended she had promised him the house "for his many kindnesses" while he nursed and cared for her the last 10 years of her life. Mrs. Stagge died at 2:25 p.m. Sept. 26, 1959.

The suit was dismissed by Judge Louis J. Schneider of Hamilton County Common Pleas Court and Sagmeister's associates said the attorney for a time received threatening letters from Knaian. Miss Bernice McHugh, Sagmeister's secretary, said Knaian came

President Kennedy On a Spot

The pride President Kennedy felt in the triumphant unleashing of personal and official power against the steel price increase is in danger of turning into embarrassing humili-

A relatively tiny group of unionists flight engineers for Eastern Air Lines-has defied his appeals for recognition of the public interest, rejected the settlement worked out by his labor secretary in a similar dispu'e with Trans World Airlines and gone on strike.

People stunned by the President's quick and virtually uninhibited reaction to the steel price increase have been waiting for just such a situation to develop. They have wanted to see his protestations of impartiality between management and labor put to the

THE FACT that statutory provisions for presidential interference in the airline dispute already have been used up does not, in the minds of the watchers, provide him with ar airtight alibi for inaction. He had no statutory authority for opposing the steel pr ce increase, either.

What the watchers are waiting to see is not whether the government boys will treat the union boys as badly as the steel boys felt they were treated, but how the Presidert means to implement his announced philosophy that government can and should define and protect the public interest in such

And what makes the situation inte sting is the fact that some union men are as apprehensive about the President's philosophy as businessmen are.

The New York Times says, for instance, that many labor leaders appear to believe the administration either should show more support for labor or leave labor free to fight its own battles. This is precisely what many businessmen believe on their side of the

THIS REDUCES the practicability of government intervention to the crux of the issue: Does the administration better serve the public interest by substituting its own guidelines for statutory guidelines or by leaving management and labor alone to work out their economic problems, subject only to the statutory guidelines established to head off public emergencies?

If labor successfully refuses to knuckle ungrounds it alone has the right to determine its economic well-being, Mr. Kennedy will have to exercise more self-restraint in his future relations with business than he did in the steel-price increase affair.

So perhaps the real benefit of that affair will be to teach the President and his advisers something they might have been expected to know before they took office: Power must be used with a mature understanding of its consequences.

The Frenchmen defying the decision of their government and the leadership of their president in this difficult matter of separating Algeria from France know what they do. They cannot plead ignorance when they come before final justice.

They cannot defend their murder and pillage by calling it retribution for violence committed against Frenchmen by Algerian Moslems. That score was evened long ago. What has happened since Gen. de Gaulle came to grips with the Algerian problem in 1959 and then faced the truth that France could not hold Algeria against the will of its people has been blind savagery with no purpose except death and destruction.

There isn't a Frenchman who believes Algeria can be restored to its former place in the French community. The great majority nen have shown by their votes they are ready to write off the long, ex-

Supervised Playlots

We can recall years past when there was no summer playground program, no city swimming pool and no little league baseball teams. The more ingenious and inventive children found things to do but still others suffered from a lack of supervised, wholesome recreation which Salem has today.

The registration of 458 children at the opening of the summer playground program Monday gives some indication of the popularity of the entertainment and handicraft instruction that is available at the six different playlots. We'll be surprised if the over-all attendance figures this year don't equal or surpass the 1,157 total of 1961.

Who, then, are the bitter-enders who have served notice they intend to repeat the ancient Romans' ruthless destruction of Carthage and sow the Algerian earth with salt? What kind of men are capable of flowling their religion, their national discipline and ther honor as members of a civilized society?

We need to look for nothing unique in their thoughts or acts. Every society has had them; every society has them now. They are the spoilers. What they cannot possess for themselves they spoil for others.

They hate the Moslems so fiercely they get satisfaction out of killing them for the sake of seeing them die. It they cannot dominate Algeria they will try to wipe out everything that has made it worth a long and bloody war to keep the Moslems from

Ellsworth Grange

Granges play an important role in the rural life of every small community and the Salem district is fortunate to have many of them within the environs of Columbiana and Mahoning counties. One, the Ellsworth Center grange, recently marked its 50th anniversary with an appropriate program, honoring seven charter members and giving deserved recognition to other members of long standing.

We'd like to add our congratulations, if perhaps a bit belated.

Laos Slumbers By Tom Lambert

VIENTIANE. LAOS The Laotian truck driver pulled his machine to a halt on the Avenue of a Million Elephants as the single traffic light in this city of 60,000 glowed red.

The driver squinted and wiped his forehead as the humid afternoon sun glowered down on him, closed his eyes, rested his head on his forearm across the steering wheel and quietly fell asleep.

In the city's afternoon market on Samsenthai ave., its other main street, a Laotian silk merchant sleepily climbed up on the counter alongside his shimmering stock of sari like skirts, stretched out and began snoring.

Throughout this city, capital of this Alice in Wonderland state, where thousands of people still believe the earth is flat, dragons exist and amulets can turn aside bullets, those were typical reactions to the end of the civil war and formation of a Communistmenaced coalition government for Laos.

The announcement of a new government seemed unnoticed by the hundred people thronging the market to examine or haggle over trays of tropical fruit, U.S.-made toothpaste, great scarlet chunks of raw meat, dried and highly odorous fish.

IT SEEMED unnoticed also by the saffronrobbed monks strolling near the great goldleafed Buddhist obelisk at the east end of the city, each prudently carrying an umbrella against the fitful monsoon rains which steam and muddy the streets.

Soldiers at the royal - crested Gates of the King's pinkish white summer palace dozed in sentry boxes and a pedicab driver took a quiet snooze under a banvan tree.

It was the same around the morning market, near the towering black obelisk in the city's center, on the western outskirts of the city and with shoppers dawdling along rutted streets past shops raucous with nasal whine and tin can claitter from loudspeakers blaring Laotian state music broadcast

Actually, no other reaction should have been expected because thousands of Laos' estimated 2 million people never have known -or cared particularly-that a civil war was going on, that talks about formation of a coalition government were under way or that they and their country were subjects in Washington and Moscow, respectively, for cencern and capture.

Most Laotians wouldn't recognize a Communist or what he stood for if he wrapped himself in a red flag, introduced himself, handed out hammers and sickles and started preaching Marxism-Leninism.

This capital, this coontry and its indolent, unbothered, childlike people, almost have to be seen to be believed. Terms such as state, government, diligence, public opinion, neutrality are only words to most Laotiais. Food shelter and no trouble with anyone seem their basic and only desires.

UNDOUBTEDLY it is one of the most backward nations in Asia, a lush, humid-smelling land of lettuce-green rice fields and jungled mountains and a black monument to the illstarred French colonial policy.

Laos has not a single mile of railroad, less than a handful of Laotian doctors or engineers, roads which all but disappear in the monsoon season, a painful lack of civil servants, no inter-city telephone communications, almost none of the technical necessities of a 1900, let alone a 1962 state.

The United States has pumped possibly $300 millions into Laos in indirect aid since 1954 plus unannounced millions in arms. Much of the former went to corrupt Laotians through import and currency swindles. Soldiers of the pro-Western forces abandoned their American guns when the North Vietnamese and the Communist-directed Laotians made threaten-

No Outcry Against Washington Mud-Slinging

Theres a good deal of mudslinging going on in Washington. Scarcely a day goes by that someone's character or integrity isn't being impugned in speeches or in c om m tee hearings Congress. Whether an implication about the Billie Sol Estes case or an innuendo about navid Lawrence profit "windfalls" in the stockpiling controversy, there seems to be no restraint or forbearance.

Most disappointing of all is the strange silence of the so-called days of Sen. Joe McCarthy, when the air was full of outcries from them about the unfairness of the attacks and especially as to insinuations or innuendoes about disloyalty. The phrase "guilt by association" was heard repeatedly, and even the Supreme Court of the United States got into the act and denounced the spreading of inferences and assumptions and suspicions as not being the way to deal with questions of personal integrity.

Perhaps it should be remembered that the persons against whom charges were being made then were allegedly Communists or Communist - sympathizers or fellow travelers or persons deceived by Communist doctrines. Maybe if all the men entangled with Billie Sol Estes - whether misguided friends or innocent dupes - had been tied up in some way with the Communist cause, they might be staunchly defended today as victims of indictment by suspicion and "guilt by association.'

Unfortunately for them, almost all of the persons mentioned in the Billie Sol Estes case, including government officials, are just members of a political system which hasn't yet been discarded even in high places.

Thus, the political world accepts as commonplace the bestowing of "favors" by government officials and by members of Congress upon those who have helped finance their political campaigns or who happen to be friends of other highly placed persons in the government or Congress.

started. He has not yet been declared guilty or innocent. Those who have had any contacts with him, however, now are held in suspicion. Even a list of telephone numbers of government officials that he or his associates called over the years is publicized with the inference that maybe something wrong occurred during conversations which, one would suppose, are protected by the right of privacy.

Likewise, in the stockpiling investigation names are mentioned frequently and transactions are revealed which, in themselves, may have been the legitimate exercise of their best judgment by government officials.

President Kennedy started much of this by issuing a prepared statement in one of his news conferences implying that "excessive and unconscionable profits" had been involved in purchases of strategic materials during previous administrations.

Former President Eisenhower later took exection to the published inferences of lack of integrity on the part of his associates in the Cabinet and in other posts during his administration. So Mr. Eisenhower naturally resentful, came out with an attack or the Kennedy administration as having created another "mess in Washington."

IMMEDIATELY afterward a speech was made in Congress attacking the former President with innuendoes about "conflict of interest" and "stockpile subsidies to his business cronies," and deploring the fact that a man who, while serving his country as a soldier, had had his medical bills paid by the government should oppose proposals for government aid to elderly persons for medical care, whether or not they can afford to pay for it themselves.

Nobody rose to point out that Dwight Eisenhower, in the years he gave to military service, could have earned in private enterprise many times his pay as a soldier or even as president. He still is a veteran, and few will dispute the right of men in the armed forces to receive medical care. But the mudslinging goes back and forth. Character is assailed. Motives are impugned Suspicion takes the place of proof. Strange M-L Rays Open Up Fascinating, Fearful World

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK-For only $200 you, too, can be the life of the conversation.

When the chitchat exhausts the subjects of fallout, politics, and threatens to turn to psychiatryastound your friends with your knowledge of M-L.

At $200 per throw you can be fairly certain that your chums have not read the 70-page "Masers & Lasers," compiled by two young men who have formed Technology Markets, Inc.

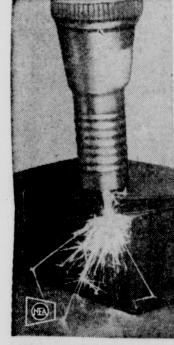

Robert Saxe, 27, and Emil Rechsteiner, 31, are convinced that M-L will soon become as important as nuclear fission, the internal combustion engine or the printing press. Most of their book sales are to industrial firms that want to be on the ground floor of a potential money-maker. Besides, they can probably write the $200 off in taxes.

Hex Signs -- Now 'Chust for Fancy'

"CHUST FOR FANCY" are these barn hex signns being painted by Milton Hill of Virginville, Pa. Once they were believed to have powers to repel evil spirits.

Hankering to try the 'Kiss Your Honey" dance-all the rage in the early 1800s-or to surround a man-size Pennsylvania Dutch meal? If so, the 13th annual Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival is for you. Place: Kutztown, Pa., June 30 through July 8.

This year's festival theme will be Dutch customs of yesteryear: Powwowing, a magic word-andmotion type of healing; wearing of the "himmelsbrief," a socalled letter from heaven, for protection against all harm; courtship (including bundling) and wedding practices. Craftsmen will demonstrate the oldfashioned ways of doing things on farm and in homes.

The hungry will be appeased by butt boi (potpie); tswivvla koocha (hot onion pie); snitz und gnepp (dried aple slices and dumplings); seven sweets and seven sours, shoofly pie, and the Dutch specialty-sauerkraut.

"Chust for fancy" will be barn hex signs, distinctive art work, valuable antique exhibits and pagenats on two centuries of folklore, much of it dating to the aerly 1700s when the first great waves of Rhineland immigrants set foot in Pennsylvania.

THESE SUNBONNETED GIRLS will bake funnel cakes (drechta koocha) at the festival. Batter flows through funnel, is deep fat fried, topped with powdered sugar or molasses. Sie sin goot (they are good).

Old Country Store

We are enjoying the visits of so many people from the Salem area lately. I am sure glad of it, this Country Store is getting so big that you can't recognize a person from one end to the other anymore unless we have a lot of people in here it seems empty and lonesome. I have decided to run a half page ad each Wednesday with just prices, we will reserve most of the bull for this page so there will be more room to tell you about our many low low prices.
